ATHLETIC SHOES

Through its Reuse-A-Shoe Program, Nike collects athletic shoes of any kind and any brand and grinds them up. Please note that only athletic shoes without any metal can be accepted. Three types of materials are obtained from this process:

- Nike grind rubber from the outsole is used to make soccer, football, and baseball fields and weight room flooring;
- Nike grind foam from the midsole is used to make synthetic basketball courts, tennis courts, and playground surfacing tiles; and
- Nike grind fluff from the upper portion of the shoes is used as padding under hardwood basketball floors.

This program enables Nike to donate football and soccer fields, playgrounds, running tracks, and basketball and tennis courts in communities around the world.

The following retail stores and recycling centers in southern California participate in Nike's Reuse-A-Shoe Program:

A Snail's Pace Running Shop

CARPETING

The following firms accept used carpeting from businesses to be recycled:

BASF Corporation

Through its "Six Again" program, BASF collects all BASF Nylon Six carpet fiber from businesses and recycles it into new carpet nylon. Call (800) 839-3233 or visit www.nylon6ix.com

Collins and Aikman Floorcoverings

311 Smith Industrial Boulevard
 Dalton, Georgia 30721-8661
 (706) 259-9711 or (800) 248-2878

Through a program called the Infinity Initiative, this firm collects used carpeting at its Dalton facilities, where it is recycled. Under this process, the firm chops, granulates, and recycles pallets of reclaimed used floor coverings to produce outdoor parking bumpers and industrial flooring. To learn the details of the process, visit the firm's website http://www.cafloorcoverings.com/env_commit/recycle.html

DuPont Carpet Reclamation Program

Under The Invironmentalists, The Interior Service Company of INVISTA, formerly known as DuPont Flooring Systems, a comprehensive system exists to remove and replace commercial carpet, regardless of the manufacturer, fiber type, or construction. Every time The Invironmentalists removes carpet and installation scraps from a job site, the carpet waste is recycled. At The Invironmentalists recycling center, the fiber content and quality are identified and carpets are sorted according to their recycling value. Carpets can then be processed into reusable materials for such products as carpet cushion, sod reinforcement, and automobile parts. There are over 90 locations in the United States and Canada. For more information, visit: <http://www.theinvironmentalists.com/content/reclamation/dfs05.shtml>

Interface Incorporated

The Interface ReEntry(r) program offers landfill diversion options for carpet tile and broadloom carpets reclaimed from Interface Flooring Systems and Bentley Prince Street carpet installations. Non-recyclable tile products are assessed for possible reuse, i.e., donation to a nonprofit organization, or they may be used for energy capture and conversion, generating steam and/or electricity. Vinyl backed products are sorted and used in the manufacture of GlasBac(r) RE recycled vinyl composite backing for new tile products.

Broadloom carpet is reclaimed and either recycled into car parts, carpet padding, water filtration piping, counter top material, backerboard sheet for sub-floors, or converted into steam and/or electricity. For more information on how the Interface ReEntry program works, call (888) 733-6873 or (888) REENTRE.

CELL PHONES

The CellAgain Program helps local, regional, and national organizations, schools, and clubs raise money for their causes by recycling old, broken, or unused cell phones. A group that collects cell phones can earn 100 percent of the value of each phone. CellAgain pays for all shipping charges so groups earn the maximum amount for their fundraising efforts.

CellAgain provides an ACTIVATION KIT that can be requested by telephone, e-mail, or downloaded from the firm's website: www.cellagain.com. (Insert period) The following materials are in the ACTIVATION KIT:

- an informational poster to promote the group's fundraiser;
- an informational flyer for distribution;
- receipts for donors' tax records;

- a shipping inventory form;
- an instruction sheet for starting, collecting, shipping, and getting paid; and
- a poster to track the group's progress in reaching its fundraising goal.

For more information, send an e-mail message to info@cellagain.com or call 1 (866) 298-0892 weekdays from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. eastern standard time. Or visit www.cellagain.com

Recellular, Incorporated

Website address:

<http://www.recellular.net/brochure/contact.asp>; E-Mail address: marketmaker@recellular.com

Recellular, Incorporated buys, sells, and recycles used cell phones, pagers, printer cartridges, PDAs, and other hand held electronics. It also manages the recycling program for the Cellular Telecommunications and Internet Association (CTIA), the wireless industry's national association. Bell Mobility, Sprint PCS, and Verizon Wireless all contract with Recellular to operate their nationwide in-store collection programs.

Through the Donate-A-Phone program developed by CTIA, Recellular pays nonprofit organizations for cell phones that have been collected and can be reused, while it recycles those cell phones deemed obsolete. The amount of payment for each cell phone will be dependent on the currency of the model, age, and condition of each cell phone. Recellular will accept any hand-carried (not vehicle installed) cell phone, as well as battery and charger, if available. Mobile-installed telephones, two way radios, walkie-talkies, and cordless phones for home use are not accepted.

Working cell phones are cleared and reprogrammed. Tax receipt forms may be downloaded for use by the nonprofit organization. If an organization collects 100 or more cell phones, then Recellular will pay for the shipping of the phones to one of its facilities. Further, Recellular handles the sorting, refurbishment, sales, and disposal of all phones collected.

ELECTRONIC EQUIPMENT

Used and unwanted electronic equipment represents one of the fastest growing waste streams in the world and particularly, in the United States. Electronic waste or e-waste for short, is comprised of various types of computer, office, audio, and video equipment, including such items as the following: computers, computer monitors, laptop computers, copiers, fax machines, scanners, compact disk and digital video disk players, and audio and video cassette recorders. These items contain a variety of toxic materials such as lead, cadmium, mercury, hexavalent chromium, PVC plastics, and brominated flame retardants. When disposed of in a landfill, over a period of time, these materials can contaminate the soil and ground water.

In an effort to begin addressing this issue, on January 1, 2005, California became the first state in the nation to establish a funding system for the collection and recycling of certain types of electronic equipment. A fee will be charged at the point of sale, including Internet and catalog sales, on electronic devices (e.g.

computer monitors, laptop computers, and televisions) that have a video display screen of more than four inches measured diagonally and that contain a cathode ray tube or liquid crystal display. The amount of the fee is dependent on the size of the screen:

- $6.00 when the screen is larger than 4 inches, but smaller than 15 inches;
- $8.00 when the screen is at least 15 inches, but smaller than 35 inches;
- $10.00 when the screen is 35 inches or larger.

Under the Electronic Waste Recycling Act of 2003 (aka Senate Bill 20), retailers are required to transmit the fees to the California Board of Equalization, which will deposit the fees into the Electronic Waste Recovery and Recycling Account. The California Integrated Waste Management Board (CIWMB) will administer the program and provide payments of $.48 per pound to approved recyclers for the covered electronic devices (CEDs) that they have recycled. Approved recyclers may then pay approved collectors a minimum of $.20 per pound for the CEDs that the collector has provided to the recycler.

These funds are to be used to help foster recycling opportunities and to help approved collectors and recyclers offset some of their costs for collecting and properly recycling these CEDs so they are not thrown into California's landfills. The CEDs under SB 20 as well as other types of electronic equipment should never be thrown into the trash. Use the available resources below for collecting your electronic equipment to be repaired and reused or recycled. Also, contact your local government to determine if one-day electronics collection events are held in your area.

e-Bay, the world's largest online marketplace, and Earth 911 have joined together to establish a Rethink initiative that is designed to educate the public about the different options for safely disposing of electronics, including donation, reuse, recycling, and refurbishing. Visitors to eBay's Rethink site, www.ebay.com/rethink, will be able to easily access Earth 911's database of community resources on local electronics collection programs. Earth 911 is an online database of community specific resources covering such areas as the following:

- Air pollution prevention
- Aluminum can recycling
- Battery recycling
- Electronics recycling
- Energy conservation
- Environmental glossary
- Fire prevention and resources
- Green shopping tips
- Mercury information
- Organics and composting
- Used motor oil recycling
- Water pollution and conservation

• TAKE-BACK PROGRAMS OF MANUFACTURERS

Dell offers customers a way to return unwanted computer and electronic equipment, as well as peripherals from any manufacturer to be recycled. Items such as computers, monitors, printers, scanners, fax machines, personal digital assistants, digital cameras, zip drives, speakers, keyboards, mice, and toner cartridges will be accepted. For details, visit: <http://dell4me.com/recycling>.

Epson offers a program for its customers to send back used Epson products such as printers, scanners, digital cameras, desktop and laptop computers, and projectors to be recycled. For details, visit: <http://www.epson.com/recycle>

For consumers, Gateway offers a rebate for the trade-in of a computer and its peripherals. The rebate can then be used towards the purchase of a new Gateway product. Visit http://www.gateway.com/about/corp_responsibility/env_options.shtml to learn more details. Through its Asset Recovery Program, Gateway offers its business customers the option having its computer equipment recycled or receiving a credit towards the purchase of future Gateway products if the material is reused. For details, visit: http://www.gateway.com/work/services/asset_recovery.asp

Through its Planet Partners program, Hewlett-Packard (HP) accepts a variety of computer and office equipment and printer supplies from consumers and businesses, to be recycled. The equipment and supplies can be from any manufacturer. For details, visit: <http://www.hp.com/hpinfo/globalcitizenship/environment/return/index.html>. Consumers can receive fair market value for used computer and office equipment, when purchasing new HP products. Similarly, businesses can receive cash for returning used computer equipment, which HP will refurbish and resell. HP also has partnered with the National Cristina Foundation and Computers for Schools to donate used computer equipment for reuse. In addition, HP has joined with e-Bay to promote the Rethink Initiative, a website that provides information, tools, and solutions for selling, donating, or recycling used computers and electronics.

IBM also offers a recycling program whereby consumers and small businesses may return computers, monitors, printers, and optional attachments from any manufacturer that will be recycled. Computer systems that are determined to be suitable candidates may be refurbished and donated to Gifts in Kind International. This organization in turn donates the systems to nonprofit organizations. For details, visit: <http://www.ibm.com/ibm/environment/products/pcservice.shtml>

PHARMACEUTICAL WASTE

Proper Disposal of Unwanted Medicines or Pharmaceutical Waste

Traditionally, consumers have thrown unwanted medicines or pharmaceutical waste into their trash containers, have poured them down their sinks, or have flushed them down their toilets. The latter option has historically been recommended by poison control centers to prevent the accidental or purposeful ingestion of inappropriate drugs or dangerously high doses of drugs by those for whom the medication was not intended, particularly children. While this option serves to prevent the immediate accidental exposure or ingestion, it adds to the pollution of the environment through treated wastewater or sludge and therefore, can lead to low-level, chronic human exposure.

Pharmaceutical waste can establish a long-term presence in the environment from its excreted residues that sometimes cannot be removed by sewage treatment or water treatment processes. These residues pose unknown risks to people as well as the environment. Human exposure to trace residues can occur by contact, by ingestion of water, or by ingesting food crops grown on land treated with sludge or irrigated with wastewater.

The two best options for disposing of unwanted medicines are to drop them off at a hazardous waste collection center or your local pharmacy. It is preferable to keep the medicine in its original container so that the center or pharmacy will be able to identify the type of medicine. For privacy purposes, you should remove any personal information from the label (e.g. name, address, and/or telephone number) by scratching out the information or using a permanent marker to cover the information. The following hazardous waste collection centers accept unwanted medicines or pharmaceutical waste from residents only:

Lompoc, CA 93436

(805) 875-8024 or (805) 875-8027

If you contact your local pharmacy, ask if it properly disposes of unwanted medicines through the use of a hazardous waste contractor. Some pharmacies, unfamiliar with hazardous waste regulations, may dispose of the pharmaceuticals by throwing them into a trash container or by pouring them down the sink.

PLASTICS

See the list of recycling drop-off and buyback centers on pages 52-53.

The American Plastics Council and Moore Recycling Associates have developed a website in California to foster the recovery of clean and dry grocery and retail bags and polyethylene, such as stretch wrap and shrink wrap: www.PlasticBagRecycling.org.

The website provides consumers, municipalities and businesses in California with information on grocery stores and other recovery facility locations that collect plastic bags and film for recycling. The website also includes a film identification section, information on how to set up a collection program, a markets database, and tools to determine the cost-effectiveness of an onsite plastic film recovery program. For information, please contact Moore Recycling Associates at (888) 753-7485 or send an e-mail message to Help@PlasticBagRecycling.org.

The American Plastics Council and the Environment and Plastics Industry Council have also developed a Recycled Plastic Products Directory. This Directory identifies products made with or packaged in recycled plastic. The American Plastics Council also maintains a database of buyers and sellers of recycled plastics in the United States and Canada. Both the Directory and the database can be accessed through: www.PlasticResource.com.

In addition, for businesses, Moore Recycling Associates and the American Plastics Council have a free referral service to encourage the recovery of scrap plastics along the West Coast. The Recovered Plastics Market Referral Service allows buyers to connect with suppliers. Among the materials that have been recovered through the service include the following:

Videotapes, compact disks, empty trash bins, agricultural film, shrink-wrap, polycarbonate water bottles, crates, nylon carpet, clean polystyrene packaging, and other post industrial material.

In Santa Barbara County, grocery stores such as Vons, Ralphs, Scolari's, and Lazy Acres accept plastic bags for recycling. Refer to your local telephone directory for the location nearest you. The following types of plastic bags are accepted:

- Grocery bags
- Bread bags, if there is no residue
- Retail bags with the hard plastic and string handles removed
- Newspaper bags
- Dry cleaning bags
- Clear bags labeled with a #2 or a #4.

Please ensure that the plastic bags are clean and dry and do not contain any material.

The following types of plastic are not accepted by grocery stores:

- Sandwich, storage, and freezer bags or other plastic used for food packaging e.g. Saran Wrap
- Bubble wrap
- Stretch wrap
- Trash bags, including lawn and leaf bags.

PROPANE TANKS

Federal requirements that became effective on April 1, 2002 prohibit tanks without an overfill prevention device (OPD) from being filled with propane. As a result, many consumers have sought to exchange their propane tanks for a new one that contains an OPD or have had an OPD installed on their existing tank. The following places will accept propane tanks to be recycled or exchanged for a new one:

SAND

(See list of firms under Construction and Demolition Debris category on pages 28-29.)

SMOKE DETECTORS

Ionization type smoke detectors contain a very small amount of radioactive material, Americium 241, while photoelectric type detectors do not contain any radioactive material. The ionization type smoke detectors are not accepted at the hazardous waste collection centers in Santa Barbara County, since such facilities are not permitted to accept radioactive material. Further, such smoke detectors should not be thrown in the trash. Therefore, these types of smoke detectors should be returned to one of the manufacturers/distributors listed in the table on page 61, for safe disposal. When returning a smoke detector to the manufacturer/distributor, include a note that indicates that the detector is intended for disposal and mail it to the address indicated.
